Dear Mr. Newman,

I am contacting you at the suggestion of Dr. Robert Peck. I am working on a book about the Audubon Bien Edition re-issued by J.W. Audubon in 1860. We would like to mention your discovery of the grouse engraving in the book and illustrate it. Would it be possible to obtain a high-res digital image of the engraving and your permission to reproduce it? If so, please inform me as to what information you need for that purpose. I look forward to hearing from you.

Sincerely,

Dear Mr. Oppenheimer:

With respect to your request on behalf of your corporation as to the use of published Audubon material written by Bob Peck and me we are glad to try to cooperate. You stated that you wish to use how the grouse image was discovered and use a reproduction of that image in a book you are writing about the Bien images of Audubon's reproductions. This is to be on a non-exclusive use basis. Both Bob and I do our work on behalf of not for profit organizations and you we assume are working on behalf of a for profit corporation. We hope the conditions of this message are satisfactory to your organization.

Each of us are to be furnished with a complete copy of your book and of each subsequent revision of it. No part of the data we are furnishing is to be transferred by your corporation or you to any other person or entity. You or your corporation shall not have the right to use or permit the use of any of the image or images we are permitting to be used in a separate form than your above mentioned book. We shall retain the right to retain, use and transfer hereafter all rights to the material except as that what may already have been granted to others or are being granted or may be granted to others like you.

You have asked for certain quality of image reproductions. We have very limited equipment here and if you need what we cannot easily reproduce you will have to cover such costs.

I am sorry to be so long winded in this matter but I write and do research for pleasure and try to satisfy everyone I can.

Thank you Mr. Newman for your reply. The terms are fine. Before we determine the need for additional expense for digital files, perhaps you would be willing to send me existing files you have for evaluation. I reviewed the excellent article co-authored by you and Dr. Peck and the reproduction quality looked good there. Should you be willing to send me the files you have for evaluation please be assured that I will not use them without your aforementioned approval.

Dear Mr. Serfass,

We are finally at the point of making decisions about which illustrations will be included in the final layout of the book that you were so kind to send me the hi-res grouse pictures for. Once I have the final layout I will send you the excerpt where it is mentioned and the payment that was agreed upon. Right now though, could you please send me a line describing exactly how you would want the credit line to read? We need this for layout purposes.

Mr. Oppenheimer:

I apologize for the confusion. As it turns out, to my embarrassment, there is now a new lower limitation on the size of attachments and that prevents me from emailing you the whole sample sheet to you. If this is one of the images you are interested in, I will gladly make a cd and mail it to you directly. I will call your office presently to discuss the best way to accomplish this goal. Thanks, Thomas Serfass, Curator, Newman Money Museum
